Agent-Based Modeling: Course Notes

Agents are autonomous entities that follow local rules and interact with an environment.

Sable Simulation Experiment

In the fictional Sable simulation, there are exactly 37 agents.
Each agent starts with 12 energy units.
The simulation runs for 80 ticks.
Emergent behavior is a system-level pattern arising from local agent interactions.